VIRTUAL PRESENTATION

SUPPORTING MORALLY INJURED FEMALE VETERANS

MARCH 10 ♦ 1:00-4:00PM EST

SUMMARY

Moral injury (MI) has been defined as “perpetrating, failing to prevent, bearing witness to, or learning about acts that transgress deeply held moral beliefs.” For women veterans, MI is often one of the many residual effects of military sexual trauma, hazing, gender harassment, and institutional trauma. This workshop will explain moral injury and describe how MI manifests in women veterans; review life aspects that MI can affect; and lead a discussion on how helping professionals, community health organizations, and family members can work together to support morally injured women veterans.

OBJECTIVES

- List potentially morally injurious events that women veterans experience.
- Identify aspects of life that moral injury can affect.
- Describe how moral injury may be an impediment to seeking support.
- Determine the composition of a multidisciplinary team that could provide holistic support to women veterans suffering from MI.

PRESENTER Dr. Daniel Roberts

Dr. Daniel Roberts is the President and CEO of the Moral Injury Support Network for Servicewomen, Inc., a 501(c)(3) non-profit organization that conducts world-class, women-centered education and research in spiritual leadership and spiritual support. Daniel has over 18 years of experience in providing emotional and spiritual support to men and women in the armed forces. He also provides training and mentorship to thousands of military, VA, and civilian chaplains through conferences, classroom instruction, and one-on-one coaching. Dr. Roberts created the Comprehensive Female Soldier Support Model, a framework of spiritual care for women service members. Daniel currently leads two multi-organizational research projects on moral injury.
